A PRINCELY BEQUEST TO PIONEERS' HOMEW. C. PARSONS WAS HIMSELF A PIONEER.Estimated That the Gift Will Amount to $75,000.

It will be learned with pleasure by all Arizonians, says the Journal-Miner of Prescott, that the late W.
C. Parsons, has generously remembered the Pioneers' Home in this city, making it the beneficiary of a sum that is estimated will run to at least $50,000, copies of his will being received in the city yesterday, and conveying this important information.

This well known pioneer stipulated in his will, which was signed at McCabe in September, 1910, that after certain bequests are made the estate should be divided into twelve equal parts, and that the Pioneers' Home should receive two-twelfths of the whole. If the estate is valued at what it is generally reputed to be worth, this institution accordingly will receive that sum, and possibly it may reach $75,000.

Major Doran received a copy of the will yesterday, making the announcement public. Later it was delivered to Governor Sloan, and by him taken to the capital last night, where it will be officially cared for, until the occasion arises for its presentation to the administrator of the estate.
In speaking of this magnificent consideration extended the institution and the cause it represents, Major Doran said that the tribute of this pioneer to the pioneers was not unexpected. Mr. Parsons informed him late in 1910 that provision had been made for assisting the Pioneers' Home, and that it was a pleasure for him to remember the good cause.

The news of the bequest has occasioned little surprise among those who knew Mr. Parsons best. He was a stalwart pioneer, generous to a fault, and above all he was a man of deeds and not of words. He was a man of wonderful personality.
Rugged in physique, in his early life he battled with conditions that only the pioneer knows. From one end to the other of the country he wandered, and he was unusually successful in mining. The proceeds of sales he invested in one industry and another, until at the time of his death his interests extended from Florida in the south to Oregon in the northwest. It is not known what his fortune is, but intimate friends are of the belief that it will range close to one and a half million dollars.

EARLY CONVENTION OF THE PRINTERS

Annual Meeting of the I. T. U. at San Francisco, August 14—Phoenix Represented.

The fifty-seventh annual convention of the International Typographical union will be held in San Francisco August the 14-19, inclusive, and is considered one of the most important labor gatherings to be held during the year. The organization is international in its scope and comprises a membership of approximately 55,000 affiliated with local unions in more than seven hundred cities and towns in the United States and Canada. The convention is a representative one, being composed of delegates elected from the various local unions throughout the country, and to represent a local union at the international convention is regarded by the membership as being the highest honor possible to confer upon a member by the local organization.
Phoenix union No. 352 will be represented by its worthy president, W.
B. Gillard, linotype operator on The Arizona Republican. Mr. Gillard will leave about Sunday, August 6. He is president of the Phoenix Typographical union and has distinguished himself in that capacity.

Union Printers Home.

An institution which is the pride of every member of the organization is the Union Printers Home at Colorado Springs, Colo. Contiguous to pikes peak, in a country that is known the world over for the salu-brity and curative qualities of its climate. The building was erected and furnished in 1892 at a cost of $70,000, every cent being paid on completion. Not only was it free from debt but a surplus of $15,000 was in the bank to the credit of the fund.
With the exception of $10,000, an unsolicited and unconditional gift from George W. Childes of the Philadelphia Ledger and Anthony J. Drexel of the international banking firm of Drexel, Morgan & Co., as an appreciation of the worth of the organization, this building was erected by the efforts of the union printers of this country. A hospital annex was erected later, then the main building was erected at a later date at a cost of $40,000; then a library addition, laundry and boiler plant, superintendent's cottage, green houses, barns, lawns, etc. The home is situated on 50 acres of land donated by the citizens of Colorado Springs, and the property is now valued by conservative real estate men at $1,000,000.
The International Union has expended in the last sixteen years in building and maintaining this home over $900,000 that a refuge may be provided for the invalid, aged and infirm members, to the end that in days of adversity they may not be compelled to rely upon the mercies of the cold world, but will have a home in substance as well as in name.

The International Typographical Union is the pioneer in the fight against the "white plague" and is earnestly engaged in educating its membership in the best methods of preventing and cure of this dread disease.

MARSHAL MOORE MEETS PUGILISTIC WONDER

Mexican, Ambitious to White Town, Brought to Terms By Able Bodied Chief.

Although but five feet seven inches in height, Juan Frales made himself a candidate for pugilistic honors by a fight in which he participated yesterday afternoon. Frales is a Mexican who has difficulty in deciding which he likes better, maravanna, or bad Whiskey, so he uses both.

While following his profession of tippling in a saloon in the eastern part of the city at about 3:30 o'clock, he manifested a desire to engage all the other persons present in battle. His challenge was refused, but not to be denied his afternoon of delicate pleasure by such a refusal, Frales proceeded to attack his brother tipplers, single and en masse. He went for all parties present with a determination that made the majority of them leave for the street without staying a moment to watch developments. The bartender called the police over the phone, and the city marshal, believing the affair nothing more or less than an ordinary bar room wrangle, sent Jailer Perrin down to pour oil on the troubled waters, and bring the disturber of the peace back for a night's rest in the city dormitory.

Perrin went, but a single look at Fra-les was enough for him. By that time the Mexican was raging and longed for other worlds to conquer. Perrin called the station again, and asked for assistance. Marshal Moore himself responded to the second call, and backed up by Perrin, he walked up to Frales.
Recognizing the chief of police the Mexican made an onslaught that might have ended the officers' life had he not been watching for such an attack.
The angry and infuriated Mexican was met by a blow from the open hand of the chief, who thought he might be brought to terms without resorting to more extreme punishment. Coming back for another round, Frales was given a different reception. The chief, who can put up a creditable fight himself when occasion demands, worked him over in a professional style that overlooked no part of his physiognomy or anatomy. When the last round was over, Frales was in no condition to enter the ring again, and he allowed himself to be led to the jail without giving any further trouble.

He is well known to the officers, and has been confined in the jail so often that he probably knows and attaches a sentimental value to every nook and turn of the room. He was first brought in about three weeks ago, after he had come out first best in a fight that took place in a public alley. He served ten days for this little relapse into pug-ilism, but was returned a few days after his release for drunkenness. No charge was made against him on his second visit, but he was put to work about the grounds in the stables, and in the basement of the city hall cleaning the floors, and keeping house.

After two or three days of this menial service, Frales asked Marshal Moore to let him go, and catch another man to fill his place. "Instead of letting you go," Moore replied, "I intend to get you ten days."

That was too much for Frales. That evening he was numbered among the absent. The marshal regretted his absence so little that he made no attempt to relocate him, hoping that the lesson of his last arrest would cause him to restrain his desire to quarrel.

The Mexican was a peon in his own country, and since he crossed the line about three months ago, has attracted his full share of attention from the police.

After the fight in the saloon, Marshal Moore found a valuable ring on the floor, that will be returned to the owner who calls at the police station, and proves his ownership.

ETERNAL HOPE.

In the background of his mind, even through the deepest distress, is the expectation that the future will be brighter than the past. The future of the world that now is, says the Indianapolis Star.
"The miserable have no other medicine, but only hope," says the greatest of poets, wise in human lore.
The more hopeful a man's nature the more quickly he recovers from the blows of fate, and undertakes the fight again, confident that this time better fortune will be his. The more hopeful he is the happier. Nothing lastingly

One noted authority says that there are five baldheaded women to every four baldheaded men and loss of hair among women is rapidly increasing.
This is the startling statement published in one of the standard magazines this spring.
This would indeed be distressing news for women were it not for the fact that there is one preparation that will surely prevent loss of hair from either man or woman.
Ladies, don't worry; this great authority may be right and may be wrong. Just put your faith in PARISIAN SAGE; it will keep for you all the hair you have now and grow for you an abundance of new hair.
